Is Sifton Our Moses?

The open letter of Sir Clifford Sifton in which he says that nothing matters now but the prosecution of the war, must go all red blooded Canadians who are waiting for Laurier or Borden, or Conservation or Liberalism. These men and those parties can all, if necessary, go into the dust. If Sir Clifford Sifton is the autumn of his distinguished career cannot see his way clear to stand square for the proper prosecution of the war, then he no longer represents any following of importance in Canada, save French Canadian reactionaries and the foreign enemy within our gates. If Sir Robert Borden is not the man for the crisis, let him stand aside and allow Canadians to pick a successor, irrespective of political leanings. If Sir Clifford Sifton, an ex member of the Laurier Cabinet, who now splits with his Old Chief on the issue of conscription, is better fitted to lead a union war party seven years after the victory over the forces whose battle cry is "no more men and no more money," then let Sifton lead, and Canada will follow. Are we in this country to run tall, or as Sir Clifford Sifton puts it: "shall Canada be the first of the allied nations to sink from the field?" And why? Because a group of petty politicians, without vision and breadth, and with a distorted idea of the value of their own and their friends' hides, had us to.

It is said that Sir Clifford Sifton, who has just returned from England, where he has been most of the time since war began, has resolved to lead his countrymen to victory. He has a healthy regard for a win the war government made up of the respective of party affiliations. Let Sir Clifford go ahead. We have waited for upward of two and one-half years now for a Moses. Saturday night.

The I. W. W.

The members of the malignant confederacy known as the I. W. W. have always shown a violent hatred of the social system and an evil disposition toward all orderly and permanent domestic, civil or commercial organization, and it seems very probable that they are the tools of Germany at the present time. The I. W. W. is absolutely inimical to America. There has never existed an organization so vindictive. As a guerrilla force of Germany in the United States and Canada at present the I. W. W. would be ideal. From all appearances, this transient organization is employed. There appears to be little doubt that the labor outbreaks and other disturbances prevalent on both sides of the border have been fomented by the I. W. W. in the interest of Germany.

If this is the case, it is a remarkable thing that Germany should have found available in America a large force of mercenaries whose activities are little less effective in their behalf than those of an army of irregulars.

In many parts of the American west the public have organized to defend the community against these bandits, and in many instances have treated them with severity. The state and federal authorities, however, have not dealt with them as they deserve. This injustice is hard to understand. It is understood that the federal authorities are about to adopt sterner measures to put a stop to their activities.

It is evident that the I. W. W. are extending their propaganda and agitation to include the government. They should take vigorous measures against them without delay. This country probably appears to the I. W. W. members as a most promising field. Should the German emperor be permitted to maintain a force of guerrillas in Canada, to carry on hostilities on his behalf by inciting our working men to strike, by setting fire to our forests and grain fields, and seeking to destroy bridges, railroad tunnels, waterworks and other public utilities. All these outrages have been committed in the United States on the scale of warfare. In them we should read our lessons of experience and take steps to prevent them from taking place here.

The disturbances that have taken place on the waterfront have all the appearance of I. W. W. work. The police should not hesitate to protect men who are peacefully working from the violence of ruffians who have no regard for law. Vancouver Sun.

Memorial Service

A memorial service for the dead heroes of the Meadow Creek district will be held at the Meadow Creek schoolhouse next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. W. E. MacNiven and Rev. J. W. Kidd will both take part in the service.

The following are the list of killed who at the time of sailing were residents of Meadow Creek.

Samuel Loyd Boyce, eldest son of Samuel J. Boyce, came to Meadow Creek from London, England, in 1868, he is married by his mother and two brothers, who now reside in Vancouver, one brother in England and his sister, Mrs. A. W. Watt, of Camforth.

Harold Hooper, from England, resided at Meadow Creek for about seven years. He is married by his brother Courtney and his sister Mrs. J. Lane both of Meadow Creek.

Jas. H. Brading, came to Meadow Creek from the Isle of Wight seven years ago. He has a widow, his father and mother, and five brothers in the army and navy, and two sisters to mourn his loss.

Herbert G. Thompson, youngest son of the late David J. Thompson, of Montreal; born July 17th, 1892, came to Meadow Creek with his brothers in 1892.

Donald Howe Mason, eldest son of Robert Mason, of Ottawa, Ont., resided amongst us for a few years teaching. He and his brother Geoffrey, were both killed in action in France.

Robert Fleming Bell, eldest son of David Bell, born in Merivale, Ontario, on February 1st, 1891, came to Alberta in 1888 and resided with his parents at Meadow Creek since 1898.

Rogers Out

Hon. Robert Rogers has resigned from the Federal Cabinet and as minister of public works. He thereby deserves the gratitude of every loyal citizen of the Dominion. More than any other man he stood in the way of a union of the two political parties in Canada for a while the war Government. It is hoped that now he is down and out that some form of united effort to save the honor of the Dominion may be consummated.

200 Quitters

Two hundred Canadian officers were recently returned to Canada who decided to quit rather than revert to the ranks. It is to be understood that they have drawn two years' pay and taken two years' training, being willing to return without rendering some service to the Empire. But, then, who would want to follow such men into battle?

No Meatless Days

Apparently there is considerable confusion in the public mind over the new food regulations. Many people are under the impression that they are under the obligation to abstain from meatless days, that is days on which no flesh of any kind may be eaten. This is not the case. Beef and bacon (including ham) are forbidden on Tuesdays and Fridays, and in addition may only be served at one meal on each of the other five days of the week.

Also, at every meal at which white bread is served substitutes such as oat cake, corn bread, etc., must be offered restaurant patrons, so as to give the public an opportunity to be as sparing as possible in the use of wheaten flour.

It is clear, therefore, that it is an error to call Tuesday and Friday meatless days, when mutton, pork, fowl, etc., may be served in public eating houses, to say nothing of fish.

It is doubtful if the regulation in regard to the service of substitutes with white bread will work well in practice, although this remains to be seen; if it is necessary to conserve our supply of white flour it would have been better to place it on the forbidden list for one meal each day, and ask householders to follow the regulation voluntarily. In that way the public would have understood the situation and accepted it without question. As it is now they are not going to refrain from the use of it, and it is hardly likely that the regulation will be any disinclination in the consumption.

Germany And The War

Listen to this cheering bit, quoted from an article by Curtis Roth, former U. S. vice consul, at Plauen, Germany, which appeared in a recent edition of the Saturday Evening Post.

"If Germany is to be defeated in the not too far distant future, she must be defeated by reason of actions from within. There is no threat of defeat from without the long lines of trench and naval patrol. Those lines might be swept slowly backward for years, without a break coming anywhere in all the defensive front."

The High German Command—and I have heard this assertion thousands of times from men of responsible military rank—is thoroughly confident that Germany can fight on for fifty years in a purely defensive warfare against the combined forces of the world, if necessary. The one weak link in the chain, the Balkan frontier, is now being strengthened, under the direction of German and Austrian engineers, with a view to making the entire frontier of the Central European-Asian block in impenetrable.

Nice prospect, fifty years.

HOW HE FELT

The ship had been sunk by a enemy's submarine without warning. Five of the crew managed to swim ashore. They were all taken to the great house in the neighborhood for food and shelter.

The bishop's daughter received them very kindly, and promptly asked one rough specimen, "How did you feel when the waves were washing over you, and you thought each moment might be your last?"

The sailor promptly replied, "Very wet, mist—very wet."

Producing Fords At Rate of 3,300 A Day

The Ford Motor Co. has been producing cars at a rate of more than 3,300 a day for the sixty days, and it is expected that the report for the last financial year, which may be out within the next thirty days, will show that nearly 800,000 cars have been sold as compared with 545,921 for the fiscal year ending July, 1916. The company is shut down for its usual inventory and machinery repair period. It is operating with a force of 25,000 men, 11,000 have been laid off temporarily. August 1st the company was 50,000 cars behind orders with no prospect of catching up.

The Squire's Sweetheart

KARL LORNE LYNN

WARD, TACKE & CO. LIMITED
London, Melbourne, and Toronto

"That is the worst of caring for someone very much in love with you. One is apt to be so unreasonably afraid. Think, Don, there are two of them. Two women are not run over in the London streets without some account of them."

"I did not think of them being run over," the Squire said wearily. He said no more—nothing of the kind he did fear.

He made an effort to raise his self, while his eye turned toward the door. There was something in the way he warred his hands as though the frost of age had suddenly come upon him. His face was agitated, as if he were a child, and he looked at the ravages a few hours had made in it. Poor old Hilary, who had loved very badly, since an inexpressible absence of a few hours at the girl he loved could have so ravaged his sensitive face.

"I dare say if you went back to town you would find they had returned," Hilary ventured, though of going back by the ten o'clock. Better risk a few food and come with me. It is useful to sit and do nothing. I shall go mad."

The Squire's face glowed for a moment with a gleam of life and energy which soon went out.

"She would not have come back," he said, and turned round with his back to the fire. Hilary caught up a message to Egeron to come to me here. I can't talk things over before that woman goes. She has come to some conclusion between us."

"Then you won't wait me! I had made up my mind to wait you for ten o'clock. I have plenty of time still."

"Can't you stay?" the Squire asked in a tone of mechanical kindness. "Why should you not stay, Hilary, when you have just come? You are not looking unwell. Been overworking? I thought you had been down a month ago."

"I shall come with you, as a matter of fact, Don. I'm internally worried. You have not got all the troubles of life to yourself. Since I came to this afternoon I've heard that old Gilbert South has filed a petition for divorce."

"Ah, that's bad," said the Squire. "I'll be honest with you, Hilary. I'll be honest with you. He hasn't a leg to stand on, the old scoundrel. It will only make that poor woman whiter and him blacker."

"It will kill her," said Hilary briefly.

"There was a knock at the door. The Squire looked up eagerly."

"It will hardly be Egeron or me," he said; but his face lit as William brought in the evening's letters on a tray.

"There may be some word," suggested Hilary.

The Squire turned over the letters rapidly. It was as he had known it would be. There was no letter from Dolly's large, sweet, unformed handwriting, which had been so full of content so many sweet things for a lover.

He put the letters on one side. Then he took them up again and glanced through them more carefully. Hilary's superscription on it seemed to puzzle him. He opened it, took out the contents of the first page and read it, and the expression of his face changed.

"There is some news," he said.

"Good! I told you it would be all right," the Squire said.

"As soon as there is anything to tell," he had not heard or did not quite understand him.

"It will Egeron would come," he said.

"Who took the message?"

"Old Hall's grandson."

"I'll have time to go to the New Cottage, if I start now. The message may have miscarried."

"Stay, Hilary! I'll come with you. I can wait here. Do you know what you don't know the ticking of a clock can be like the dropping of a teardrop water on a stone?"

"I dare say we'll meet Egeron on the way, and I can turn back with him."

"Have some food first. I ought to stay and see that you eat it, but I'll have my train if I don't. I'll go to town all right. You'll let me know at once what has happened."

"As soon as there is anything to tell."

The door opened again, and this time it was a Lionel Egeron who came. Hilary stood up, and he passed out, not so engrossed in his own troubles that he forgot to tell William that his master had not dined and that food had better be set in the dining room.

It was only when he was in the train that he remembered the Squire kept to himself what was in the letter that contained news.

At Clapham Place a disappointed man awaited him: Mr. Langton was out of town. A new servant opened the door to him.

"When did he go?"

"He went yesterday, sir. He was very much in need of a holiday. It is urgent, sir, Dr. Verrier, of White Street is seeing his patients, No. 11."

"Thank you," Hilary went away, huffed and dejected—walked through miles of dark, accented streets, got back to his rooms in the small hours, and only then remembered that he had not asked when Mr. Langton was coming back.

It was at Clapham Place as early as he dared present himself in the morning to ask the question, but he met with a rebuff. Mr. Langton had not said when he was coming back. It might be a month, maybe, six weeks.

Could a letter be forwarded to him?

Hilary's appearance forbade his being taken as an important man, which was just as well. He noticed vaguely that the house had a disheveled air—cleaning-up going on, evidently.

The man answered respectfully, that Mr. Langton's return was not to be forwarded, as he would be moving about from place to place.

Hilary went away with a huffed and disturbed than ever. After a few days, during which he walked and drove about northwest London, hoping vainly to come upon some landmark that he could recognize from that night drive in Mr. Langton's motor, he went and interviewed Dr. Verrier—a fat, rather foolish-looking young man, who was not likely Hilary to be of much use to him.

Mr. Langton's many patients.

Verrier gave Hilary the key that turned a very large on Hilary, regretted that he was not in a position to give Mr. Verrier—Stranger—information which would enable him to find out where he was.

He added, in a more human and friendly way that Langton was always very busy, but he had been just the same when he had been up to see Mr. Verrier's friend, Mr. Sir William Verrier, who knew Mr. Langton was quite capable according to the matter in hand.

Dr. Verrier, but always a quiet fellow, though he had retired more and more into his shell as the years went by.

"He had followed all the same," Dr. Verrier concluded, in a general outline.

"I was very badly—dare say he went away too long. He'll be thinking of me, and I'll depend on it. Some people pitch their patients to the devil and they get it. Not Langton. Langton would rush back from the first look at the door."

Interesting Letter From Front Trenches

We recently were successful in getting a band. The instruments were provided that they sent back to the front and it has been stated that a grant of $1,000 was made by the province of Saskatchewan to two of these battalions. This may not be true. It is well known that the first of these battalions in the division which followed the first into the field had a very substantial regimental fund. These funds were created by gifts of money from the towns and the cities where the battalions were organized, and from profits on regimental canisters which their long periods of training in Canada made possible as a result of the unfortunate experience of the first division at Valcartier.

The colored of this battalion and some of its friends purchased very recently one thousand pairs of socks for the boys out of course unless we get funds from somewhere our private resources at our regimental funds will soon be exhausted, and there will undoubtedly be great discontent.

It may not be possible for the province to grant money to the front, but I am satisfied that if the prominent citizens would take the matter into the people would be very willing and even anxious to help us. Mr. Verrier's Fifth has a reputation which the battalion has gained. I have sent you a copy of our Christmas annual. In this you will read what the senior Canadian General said of the Fifth. But his words there have been altered by the senior, and I am now enclosing the original Currier's statement in his own handwriting, which I will ask you to please preserve.

I could tell you many things but I do not think it is necessary. I stated that the Fifth Battalion has gained more honors and decorations than any other Canadian regiment. It has been specially mentioned in despatches and after one trying experience, Sir Douglas Haig said, "I am proud to have a battalion of this description in my army and wish to thank you for the magnificent gallantry which you have displayed." No higher words of praise have ever been given to an unit, and I am sure you all have every reason to feel proud of Saskatchewan's representatives in the first Canadian division.

We do not take the matter up in a vigorous way and perhaps a sort of Fifth Battalion day could be arranged throughout the province. We had recently a draft of 250 men from Vancouver and Estevan so men. Mr. Mitchell and Hon. Geo. Bell ought to be interested. Of the thought of reinforcements we have had with the exception of about four hundred, all have been from Saskatchewan so that every city, town and village is or has been represented in this unit.

I imagine that the ladies would at once do something if the right ones started things. Lt. Col. H. M. Dyer, D.S.O., is naturally somewhat diffident about writing you as he himself has spent a great deal of his own money on the boys and besides being a very gallant and capable soldier is a kind and bi-ethnic gentleman. I have told him that I wished to address you in this connection and he has consented. Would you be so kind as to communicate with him about the battalion and its affairs?

I have been greatly honored by being asked by the 5th Battalion to write an introduction to this French magazine published as a Christmas greeting by the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the regiment, to their many friends throughout Canada.

I would not do to oblige the 5th Battalion and so I comply with their request, fully realizing my inability to do proper justice to my theme.

The pleasure of reading the "Christmas Garland" published by this battalion in 1915, have been awaiting this year's number with eager anticipation. They will not be disappointed and doubtless will find the 1917 number even more interesting.

For there will be a 1917 number. War is by no means over, nor is the end even in sight. The struggle must not and will not cease until the peace which has violated every principle of right and honor, which has ruthlessly disregarded the rights of neutral nations, which has treated innocent women and children, which has martyred its prisoners, which has bayoneted our wounded, shall be forever destroyed.

As to how war is going to end, the men in the trenches have not the slightest doubt. They are the great est optimists in the empire. Even in the dark days, now happily past, when our men were few, when machine guns were very scarce on our side, when we had little ammunition, the same optimism prevailed. The British soldier will find his bayonet and was anxious to use it.

Now it is no longer three rounds per gun per day. We can give and do more than we receive, still. More men and more guns are necessary and Canada must see to it that when a Canadian soldier falls, another is immediately ready and trained to take his place. She has done well in the past. The future demands greater efforts or former successes will count as naught. Were any Canadian soldier in France asked to send a message to his beloved home-land, he would probably be probably be—He of good cheer, send his men and please don't forget our returned wounded.

But I am wandering somewhat from my subject. I intimated in my opening sentence that the 5th Battalion had many friends. It richly deserves them all and these friends must be intensely proud of the battalion. These friends are probably our gallant corps has a prouder one. During the twenty-one months the battalion has fought in France, it has been "over the parapet" many times, has never failed to reach its objective, and has never been driven from any position. The trench captain would be proud to have the 5th Battalion under his command. It enjoys the absolute and implicit confidence of all commanders and the measure of a unit's efficiency is the amount of confidence shared in it. The Fifth has resolutely and gallantly performed every task, nobly responded to every demand, patiently and cheerfully endured every hardship and discomfort. It has made many sacrifices, but these have not been made in vain. The standard of devotion to duty has been set which must be emulated. The record of its fighting prowess fills many a page in the glorious history of the heroic deeds of those who have proudly worn the word Canada on their shoulder straps, and the hall has not yet been told. It has been mentioned in despatches by the commander-in-chief. It has played the game. I thank God for such battalions as the Fifth, and there are many such in British armies and victor's army.

And so I commend this magazine to all, feeling certain that those who read it will be more than repaid for the time they spend, and asking that they will not forget the men who are daily laying down their lives in order that "Peace on Earth and Good Will to Men" may once more prevail.

Yours truly,
F. B. BAGSHAW.

Abolish Breeding Places to Eliminate the Pests

One of the worst summer pests with which humanity has to contend is the mosquito, and yet those who suffer most usually do least to abolish the cause. Most people endeavor to protect themselves from mosquitoes, but the place to secure the greatest results is where they breed.

Mosquitoes breed in stagnant water. Rain water barrels, old tins or all sorts of receptacles which either stagnate or protected. People at summer resorts and campers in wooded districts are much troubled with mosquitoes and this pest greatly increases the number of their summer in the open air.

To prevent them breeding, stagnant water, if it cannot be drained off, should be sprinkled with low-grade kerosene, which will quickly form a film over the surface and prevent the larvae coming to the surface to breathe.

For protecting the person from mosquitoes, many substances may be used to rub on the hands and face, one being composed of one ounce each of castor oil, alcohol and lavender water; another, one ounce of oil of rose, one ounce of oil of eucalypti, and one ounce of 10-40 vasoline, while oil of cassia has been used to good effect and the odor is not objectionable.

There are many powders on the market which are more or less efficient insecticides. The foresters of the Commission of Conservation, in their surveys, have used a powder called "Buback," which was found very effective when burned in the tents in the summer before retiring, the mosquitoes and flies being killed by the smoke fumes.

JUST OUR WAY OF THINKING

We are sorry that some of our readers were displeased with the editorial comments that appeared in the last two issues regarding the Winnipeg Convention. We have, however, no apology to offer, and we feel that in taking this stand we are not sacrificing a single liberal principle. The Winnipeg Liberal papers, as well as many papers throughout the Dominion, have taken a similar stand. The Winnipeg Convention lost a great opportunity and was dominated by two or three ambitious politicians.

There were undoubtedly some splendid resolutions proposed by the convention, which before the war would have united the Liberal forces throughout the Dominion. But now we are at war, these finely worded resolutions sound like empty babblings. Now, nothing counts, except to win the war. The question that disturbs the heart of every loyal Canadian at the present time, is how can we do our duty in the war for the world's freedom when our political leaders are more anxious to secure position than they are to win the war. A few weeks ago in the British House of Commons after a great deal of criticism against various ministers, the Prime Minister implored the house "to rise above these things, and say to the government 'Get on with the war.' Some of our Canadian politicians might well take the advice to themselves.

We are quite aware of the contention that the aim of the convention was to pacify Quebec and prevent racial strife within the Dominion. Has Quebec shown herself worthy of any such consideration? Are we to neglect our soldiers at the front in order to keep Quebec in good humor? If Quebec refuses to do her duty together with the other provinces, let her be herself, or hand her over to Germany, but save the rest of the Dominion and our honor. It may not be very difficult for us to get along without Quebec. It is reported that the French Canadian troops at the front cannot be trusted in a charge, and that they refuse to go over the trenches. If they so wish let them stay out of the war for their own eternal shame, and let the name French Canadian be a dishonored name for all time.

The French Canadian Liberals interpret the resolution of the convention as opposed to conscription, and what other meaning could they put on it after the defeat of the Tupper amendment to insert the word conscription. As a matter of fact we believe the majority of the delegates favored conscription, but they thought to leave the word conscription out would win favor in Quebec and win the election. Before the war, this might have passed as good politics, but today it amounts almost to disloyalty.

If the convention had passed a resolution favoring a National government it would have met with universal approval outside of Quebec. Party questions can well rest in abeyance until after the war. "Win the war" is a policy that we can all agree on, and that is everything just now. A National government consisting of the big men of the Dominion and an election after the war, would be the very best thing for the Dominion.

With Rogers out of the way, the chief obstacle to union of all parties is removed. Rogers is willing to step out if required. What more concessions could be asked of the conservative party?

The signs of a coming election are more in evidence every day. We hope it will be avoided. If it comes it will probably be the bitterest political fight Canada has ever experienced. It is regrettable that a man like Dr. Clark should retire at this juncture. In a letter which he wrote announcing his decision, speaking of his attitude in case of an election he says:

"As a private citizen, however, in the coming fight, I shall do exactly what I have been doing for the last three years, viz., without compromising a single liberal principle I shall give a general support to the government which is manifestly in the daily earnest about the winning of a war in which the world's freedom and democracy are at stake."

Thousands of Liberals will take the same stand and vote for the party that has the "Win the War" policy most at heart. To win an election under Laurier, with the support of the Quebec French, would mean that Quebec would dominate the party policy, that our requirements of the front would dwindle away, and that Canada would be the first of Germany's enemies to quit.

CANADA'S VICTORY

Canadians have again earned the gratitude of the Empire and covered the name of Canada with glory in the taking of Hill 70 on the outskirts of Lens. In this war of great battles and have done this will stand out as one of the most brilliant feats of the war. The German losses were enormous and their counter attacks repulsed miserably. The Prussian Guard was almost wiped out. The hill dominated the whole city, so that the evacuation of Lens by the Germans cannot be long delayed.

W. C. T. U.

Some statements gleaned from the "Strength of Britain Movement."

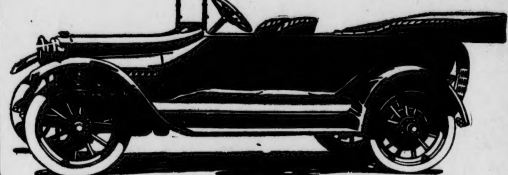

"The plain fact about drink and food is that since the war began we could have had, at the very least, three and one-half million more tons of food in this country if there had been no 'drink trade,'" says the strength of Britain Movement. "Drink has stolen one pound of food from every home in this country for every day of the war. That is what we have paid in food to keep the drink trade going."

"Lord Kitchener, being dead, yet speaketh, and every man remembers his pipe that our men should keep fit by having drink alone; but every man knows that, and by the acts that speak louder than words authority scoffs at him, and tells our young recruits that they need not follow Lord Kitchener, they need not follow the King; it will be enough if they go on drinking and give the drive the strength that alcohol leaves them."—Strength of Britain Movement.

The case could not be better put than in Mr. Charles Smith's letter to the London Times. He says: "On 65, 000,000 bushels of grain destroyed in Great Britain by the drink trade in the year ending September 30, 1916, 24,700,000 bushels are changed into alcohol, carbon dioxide is poisonous drug and a poisonous gas, yeast and sediment, mash and barrel bottoms, 9,970,000 bushels are washed away, turned into gas, or evaporated as water, 19,000,000 bushels are barley, hops and malt culms—two disintegrated residues useful as cattle food, but for that purpose inferior to equal measures of barley; 11,000,000 bushels remain in the intoxicating liquor in a decomposed and putrefying condition, pickled in alcohol."

Mr. Palmer and several other men from Wilmar, B.C., arrived in town on Tuesday, with several horses and wagons, ready for harvest work.

The rain, on Tuesday, put a temporary stop to wheat cutting. What we need now is good warm weather, with rain confined to the desert of Sahara. Let us hope Jack Frost will not pay us a visit for some weeks.

Mr. P. Cattnach and wife left for a holiday at Acme, last Thursday. They will motor from Calgary north and back to Gratum with their new Saxon Ford roadster.

Mr. P. A. Stewart and wife left last Thursday for a holiday at New Westminster, B.C. They motored as far as Calgary and from there took train for the coast.

Thursday of last week was like a Sunday in Gratum, as the people from town and district having motored to the stampee at Lethbridge.

We are having ideal weather for the ripening of the grain. If it keeps dry for the next ten days, Gratum district will have the wheat cut. The average yield for this district is estimated at from 25 to 30 bushels per acre.

Have you seen that new Mitchell car of Frank Kellicott's? It's a dandy, and Mr. Kellicott will have the agency for these cars.

Master Geo. Moore was operated on, the first of last week, at Lethbridge hospital, having scoliosis and tonsils removed. The operation was very successful, and George, with his mother, returned home on Friday. Both parents accompanied him to Lethbridge.

The second annual School Fair at the School of Agriculture, Clareholm, will be held on Wednesday, September 8th. Twenty-one rural schools in the Stavelly-Clareholm-Gratum districts will participate. Prizes are awarded for live stock, grain, house-hold sciences, etc. Last year the fair was a big success, and this year even greater results are expected. No admission fee to the grounds.

Hill Breezes

It was a new experience to be called out of bed at midnight just to see a horse die, but then it showed sympathy with the horse.

The forest range has not been seen lately in these parts.

Mr. K. Sillers is getting plucky in his old age and is putting up his hay alone.

Our ball team has disbanded for the season, after winning about $1000 in prizes and out of a total of 27 games played, winning 19, which we believe is a better showing than any other team in the circuit made.

One of the worst hailstorms in the history of Alberta, struck High River district on Tuesday, completely destroying the crops over an area of 43 miles. Reports say every light of glass on the north and west side of buildings in High River was broken.

We are running a free employment office for the benefit of the farmers during the busy season. Anyone requiring harvest, threshing or farm help can get in touch with men by calling The Atlas Lumber Co., phone 21. No charges in connection.

J. F. Rea has been appointed postmaster at Stavelly, in place of Mr. Childs, who has resigned. Any man who lives the life of a Tory deserves to get his reward on earth, seeing he has no chance of getting it anywhere else.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips, of Stavelly, were visitors in Angermouth at the big exhibit of southern California products maintained free to the public in the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. They also attended the lectures, moving pictures and concert that are a part of the daily programme. The exhibit is the largest of any in the country main tained by a commercial organization. Before returning home, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips expect to visit several of the many other places of interest in Southern California.

The Stavelly Stampede

The Stampede which was staged on the 10th, for Mr. W. P. Orr was a huge success, and anyone that did not get their money's worth is hard to satisfy. About 25 riders contested the different events, which consisted of bucking contests, wild steer riding, wild horse racing, barrel race, wrestling on horse back, etc. The famous bucking horse, J. J. was rode for the first time in local history in true stampede style, young Campbell, who also won the bucking contest doing the trick. She was ridden bare back with a cinch, by "The Panama Kid".

The dance in the evening brought in a crowd a very successful day's sport. The secretary of the Agricultural society gives us the following statement of the business done at the refreshment stand for the day.

Will YOU Give 3-1/2 Cents a Day to Keep

A Child From Starving?

If you will, read this appeal carefully then decide what share you will take in helping avert the greatest tragedy of all time.

1,250,000 CHILDREN ARE FACING SLOW STARVATION IN BELGIUM TODAY.

The Belgian Relief Commission has not the means to supply these growing children with the food that is necessary. THE SITUATION IS SERIOUS. This great relief fund has largely been administered through Americans; the break between the States and Germany has brought about a crisis; there is more need of funds now than at any previous time.

THE GREAT RELIEF WORK MUST AND WILL GO ON.

WE MUST DO OUR SHARE.

At the present time the growing child in Belgium receives only a "hunk of bread and a bowl of soup" each day. It is not enough; they must have more—or starve.

For 3-1/2 cents a day the Relief Commission can supply one child with an extra "meal" of a biscuit made with fat and lard and a cup of cocoa, not much, but it is the difference between life and death; between health and disease, for the children of heroic Belgium.

ALBERTA HAS BEEN BLESSED WITH TWO RECORD-BREAKING CROPS.

We are prosperous—the future looks bright—we are in a position to help. How many starving children can you look after? How many will we look after?

HOW MANY WILL YOU FEED?
$1200 a year, the price the Alberta farmer received for eight bushels of his wheat, will give this extra "meal" to one child for a whole year. 10c a day or $36.00 a year will keep three children from starvation. $60.00 a year will feed five; $120.00 a year will feed 10.

WERE YOU EVER HUNGRY?

Can you picture starvation, the pinched faces, the piteous cries?

IF THE CHILDREN WERE STARVING IN ALBERTA you would help—

YOU WILL HELP IN THIS CASE

You can't pass by the children's cry for food from starving Belgium?

AND YOU MUST ACT NOW

The thought that you are feeding some of these unfortunates each day will bring you happiness. Think of the eager little hands reaching for the meal you supply.

Your own meals will taste sweeter when you do your share. The paper in which you are reading this is doing its share by publishing this appeal without charge—WHAT WILL YOU DO?

You may send contributions by the week, month, or in one lump sum. You are ASSURED that your money is used for the purpose it is sent.

THERE ARE HUNGRY CHILDREN AWAITING YOUR DECISION. HOW MANY WILL YOU FEED?

CORRESPONDENCE

CLARESHOLM REVIEW-ADVERTISER

A question has recently come up which is just now agitating the minds of many residents of Claresholm. Information regarding the matter seems rather obscure and I am taking the liberty of addressing your columns for an opinion.

1. Is it possible for a man to cast three votes on a single issue within the one day set aside for voting, and to cast them legally?

2. Could I, did I represent foreign interests here, cast an individual vote for each of those interests, beside casting a vote for myself as a ratepayer?

3. Is it not necessary to have my name registered with the town clerk in case I represent other interests than my own, stating whom I represent and holding a proxy from such interests?

4. Is it legal for a traveler, representing a firm which owns property here, to vote for that firm when the traveler's name nor his credentials appear upon the voters list?

5. Is any man entitled to more than one vote on a single issue?

6. Could a renter, living in a house or occupying property, belonging to someone living in England, say, could be legally vote for that non-resident besides casting his own vote as a ratepayer.

It seems to me that many complications would result should this matter be fully insisted upon by every voter who imagines he does or really represents some other interest than his own. In case such voting is legal then it should be legal also, for ratepayers, owning several parcels of property, to vote for each piece singly. When a man's vote swings in the scale, it reads as follows:

You swear that you are the full age of twenty-one years.

That you are a freholder in your own right.

That you have not voted before on the bylaw.

That you are according to law entitled to vote on this bylaw.

That you do not directly or indirectly receive any reward or gift nor do you expect to receive any for the vote, which you now tender.

That you are a person named or intended to be named in the voters list.

That you have not received any promise nor has anything been promised you directly or indirectly either to induce you to vote on this bylaw or for loss of time, travelling expenses, hire of a team or any other service connected therewith, and that you have not directly or indirectly paid or promised anything to any person either to induce him to vote or to refrain from voting.

Every burgess shall be entitled to vote only once on any referred bylaw, if there be more than one polling place each burgess shall vote at the polling place for any polling division upon the voters list, for which his name appears.

Very truly yours,

J. E. BOWSE

BOWSE'S NOTE.—We would refer Mr. Bowse to the Town Act, section 212, which would place the position of one who voted more than once at the recent election. Voting as representatives of corporations is allowed only when voting on money bylaws. The clause referred to reads as follows:

212. The chief resident officer of any corporation tendering a vote on the bylaw may be required by the returning officer, or if properly returning officer or by any burgess to make before his vote is recorded the following oath or affirmation or any part thereof:

That you are the chief resident officer of the (naming the corporation);

That the said corporation is a freeholder in this town;

That you have not cast any vote on the bylaw on behalf of the corporation;

That you are according to law entitled to vote on the bylaw as chief resident officer of the said corporation;

That the said corporation is the corporation named (or intended to be named) in the voters list following the voters list to the voters;

That neither you nor to the best of your knowledge and belief the said corporation has directly or indirectly received any reward or gift for the vote which you now tender nor do you or to the best of your knowledge and belief the said corporation expect to receive any;

That neither you nor to the best of your knowledge and belief the said corporation has received anything or been promised anything directly or indirectly either to induce you to vote on this bylaw or for loss of time, travelling expenses, hire of team or any other service connected therewith;

And that neither you nor to the best of your knowledge and belief the said corporation has directly or indirectly paid or promised anything to any person either to induce him to vote or to refrain from voting.

(2) No inquiry shall be made of any voter except with respect to the facts specified in the above oath or affirmation.

Meadow Creek Ripples

A memorial service will be held at the Meadow Creek school house next Sunday.

Denis Carey is looking after the H. W. Beach, while Mr. A. C. Hooper has gone south on very important business. It is rumored that he has gone for his bride.

What's the matter with the horses that the firm has to take the cream from now?

A. J. Crawford has gone to B. C. on business.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Ferguson were visitors on the creek last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. McLean and Mr. R. K. Peck were visitors at A. C. Watson's ranch last Sunday after noon.

The House of Windsor

Henceforth, by a Declaration of the King, published on Tuesday, the Royal House is to be styled "The House and Family of Windsor."

For 202 years, since the accession of George I., Elector of Hanover, the dynasty bore the German description of the House of Hanover, and then, from the accession of Edward VII., of the House of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, German influence had always been great at the English Court, and had not made for the popularity of the Royal Family with the English people. Now, following on the Anglicization of the princes and princesses bearing names indicative of German and other Continental origin, the King—naked a complete ego of German nationality for himself and family and successors. It is known that the King has come to regard with anything but pride the German connection and association of his family. The Declaration assumes that "our house and family shall be styled and known as the House and Family of Windsor, and that all the descendants in the male line of our said grandmother Queen Victoria, who are subjects of these realms, other than female descendants, who may marry or may have married, shall bear the name of Windsor."

National Service

There is on record at the office of the National Service board at Ottawa, the names of more than 300,000 men; who, the National Service board returned by them expressed a willingness to change their occupations in order to undertake essential work.

One hundred and seventy-five thousand letters are now being mailed from the offices, directing such of the men as were considered best for the purpose to report for service in the harvest fields.

In the letter the fact is emphasized that the need for harvest help is acute from the Rocky Mountains to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and the same consideration is followed:

"It is of course, possible that you feel you are already doing essential service in your present work."

"Whether or not you can spare a limited time from this occupation to assist in harvesting Canada's crop is a question which must be left to your own decision. If you feel you should not, or are physically incapable, or cannot for family or other reasons undertake or assist, possibly you can influence a substitute."

An Irishman coming out of either in the morning under an operation exclaimed: "Thank God! That is over!"

Don't be so sure, and the man in the next bed, who let a sponge in his nose and had to cut me open again."

And the patient on the other side said, "Why they had to open me, too, to find one of their instruments." Just then the surgeon who had operated on the Irishman stuck his hand in the door and yelled, "Jas anybody seen my hat?" Poor Patrick faints.

The Status Quo Ante

Lost

Many high minded and noble people are recommending that the best solution of the war problem is to return to the status quo ante bellum. But while they are perfectly clear on the desirability of such an outcome, it is doubtful if they realize all the difficulties.

To return to the status quo ante would require the bringing to life of something like six millions of men just as a starter. To other millions we would have to return missing limbs, missing eyes and other necessary concomitants of physical perfection. It would require the restoring of broken homes, the returning of husbands to bereaved widows, of fathers to orphaned children. It would require the rebuilding of countless devastated treasures and a saving from the sea precious cargoes of guns and the products of men which have been sent ruthlessly to the bottom.

It would require putting the Czar back on the throne, rekindling an admiration for the Kaiser as a great peace advocate and the general rehabilitation of the autocratic idea. It would require correcting all the economic maladjustments which the tremendous expenditures for war purposes made.—E.O.J.

PAY While You Graduate

How pathetic it is to see six small farmers sending six small carts with six small consignments, along the same road to the same station twice a day? said Lord Selkirk to the Agricultural Organization Society.
